

The reason why my family came to America was to work hard to have a better life over here. It was really difficult for them to adapt to a place they've never been to.

Edgar, California