The reason why my family came to America was to work hard to have a better life over here. It was really difficult for them to adapt to a place the've never been to.

Edgar, California